

We are very pleased with the great service and performance of the Locopo servers. We have purchased three systems from them and all are performing flawlessly. We find the low power design greatly enhances the server room, leaving it quieter and unlike the large fan driven units we have yet to replace, they don't fill up with dust around the vents and require regular maintenance. We are also pleased with the power savings which are significant in our area.

I would recommend them to any small business looking to move off the power hogs that pass for servers these days.
